

Sports Update

Concordia's Cricket Team Chirps to Record 20 - 0 Season

Sir Conroy, Through 3 Matches, Remains Undefeated; Alive

Poker Team Expelled; Money Taken

The Shadow

Concordia's Finest News Source

3rd Edition Fall 2002

Concordia Declares War On Geese Nation

Mequon. This week Concordia declared a state of war "effective immediately" on the local goose nation of Gander. The geese of Gander are accused of repeatedly breaking past treaties, wounding and attacking students and "always being near the pond". Concordia Secretary of War, Randall Vince says that enough is enough.

"Those geese were supposed to have flown

Vince in the War Room: "It's time to ruffle some feathers!"

south by now!" Vince said pounding his fist on his desk, "I don't mind having geese as neighbors, but the pond belongs to us. In the past we've tried diplomacy. We gave the geese the northwest woods near the football field. We even gave them free passage through Concordia held territory. But now they want more. Now they want the pond! Our pond. The time for diplomacy is over."

Vince's comments came mostly in response to the latest act of violence committed by geese. Freshman Brenda Pitt was showing her mom around campus last Tuesday. The two of them were walking near the pond, admiring its beauty when out of nowhere a goose heavy assault squad hobbled out of the murky pond and attacked.

"My mom and I are both fine," said Pitt following the attack, "But that's beside the point. We now know that these geese are not to be trusted. They attacked once. They will do it again."

Political analyst Jules F. McKey who has been following Concordia / Gander relations for years says he fears the worst. "What Concordia doesn't realize," McKey claimed, "Is that the geese of Gander have had enough too. They're not flying south for the winter. They're going to stay right here and fight for the pond. Sources tell me that they've already enlisted the help of duck and crane mercenaries and formed an alliance with the

See War 4d

A Ganderian attack squadron descends upon Concordia.

Concordia's Internet Slower Than Running To Library, Running Back With Book

Augsburg. The Internet access at Concordia is now "Slower than running to the library and running back with the book" reported senior pre-seminary major Edward Martann from his computer on Wednesday. Asked to do a paper on St. Thomas Aquinas' book Summa Theologica, Martann immediately turned to the internet where he found a link that claimed to lead to the entire text of the book.

"When I clicked the link, the internet just sat there," said Martann, "And it sat, and it sat, and it did some more sitting. The page just wouldn't come up."

Martann says it was his roommate, senior James Hildegraafer who informed him that the book could be obtained through Concordia's library.

"When I heard that I just ran as fast as I could to the library and checked out Summa Theologica in no time flat. When I got back, the page still hadn't come up. Five minutes later it finally did, but running to the library was much faster."

Concordia's Information Technology department had no comment on the incident except to suggest that Martann's computer may not have been "optimized for fastness".

Edward Martann continues to outrun Concordia's Internet.

Your Horoscope

Gilliam Flann, Horoscopologist

Aries.

Joy and Grace are right around the corner. Unfortunately both are armed and bear a grudge against you for last summer.

Taurus.

A choice you make today will determine whether or not you end up throwing your TV out the window and screaming "I'm Free!" at the top of your lungs tomorrow.

Gemini.

Your faith in the inerrancy of Jerry Falwell will be put to the test this week when he guest-stars on the next episode of "Will and Grace".

continued on page 2...

New Line of Bible Bobble Heads To Be Released

It all began with the Martin Luther Bobble....

Mequon. In light of the success of recent Martin Luther Bobble-Head figure sales, a new line of Bible-Buddy Bobble Head figures are in the works. "People enjoy Bobble-Heads," said Bible Buddy Bobble Head Inc. CEO, Tony Keiret in a sales pitch to Concordia, "I think I can explain why this is true. When you press on the Bible Buddy Bobble Heads and they bounce up and down. Boooooing!"

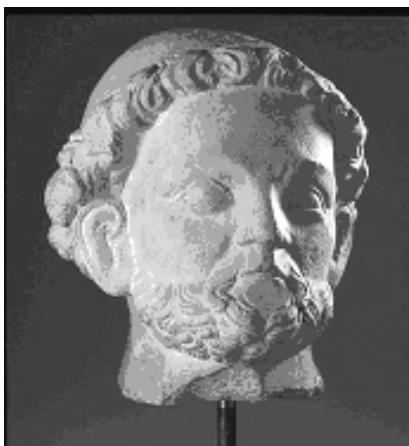

Keiret went on to reveal why Bible-Buddy Bobbles are powerful and effective devices for spreading the message of the Bible. "The average person on the street hears a name like Moses or Abraham, and that's all it is to them---just a name. These Bible-Buddy Bobble heads give a face, and a bobbling head to those names. Also, when you press on their heads, they say things. For instance, when you press on the Lot Bible-Buddy Bobble head's head he says: 'Don't look behind you or you will be turned into a pillar of salt!'"

"I liked the Esau Bobble-Head," said junior Meg Verschkinag, one of the few students allowed a sneak peak at the upcoming bobbles, "He's all red and hairy and when you push his head he says, 'Give me the stew!' He's so cute!"

Although many people are eagerly awaiting the new Bible-Buddy Bobbles, some area pastors say that the new toys are the work of the devil. "These Bible-Buddy Bobbles distort the true message of the Bible," claimed Reverend Lee Grineholt a Lutheran minister from nearby Grafton, "Turning biblical characters into toys sounds like something Satan would do to me."

In response to the criticism, Tony Keiret took out a new Beelzebub Bobble and pressed its head. "My plan to divide people on trivial issues such as Bobble-heads is working. Keep up the good work." the Beelzebub Bobble head said, to which Keiret replied, "Yes father."

The St. Bartholomew Bobble Head is expected to be the most popular.

...continued from page 1

Cancer.

An old friend will bring you happiness, laughter and a domesticated scorpion to pet-sit.

Leo.

The stars had something wonderful in store for you today. Alas, it was stolen.

Virgo.

When caught between a rock and a hard place, be sure to sign the organ-donor line on your driver's license.

Libra.

A great test awaits you. You should've studied for it instead of watching Dawson's Creek.

Scorpio.

Now is a good time to unwind, relax, and enjoy yourself. First, however, you'll have to find where she hid the remote.

Sagittarius.

Many errands, phone calls, letters which require a response, and other "busywork" is on the agenda. You never should've taken that job as secretary.

Capricorn.

Watching today's rerun of Duck Tales will end up saving your life fifteen years from now.

Aquarius.

You and your soul mate will be in the same room today. Be sure to wear your tightest biking shorts and jack up your striped socks.

Pisces.

Gratitude and thanksgiving are on your plate today. You will send a large donation to a bearded man in a Hawaiian shirt.

Argument Over Stuffed Toy Breaks Out In Cafeteria

Blubby before he was burnt at the stake by Janet.

filling her enraged eyes.

"That's right, I did," said Laney, "It was for your own good."

Cafeteria. A bitter argument over a stuffed animal broke out between junior Alice Wilk and her ex-roommate sophomore Janet Laney as they ate lunch together. "You stole Blubby!" Wilk accused Laney, tears

"Oh really?" replied Wilk, "Well allow me to do something for your own good Janet. You could use to lose a little weight..." Wilk proceeded to turn over Laney's tray of food. Chili, chicken gumbo soup and chocolate milk all spilled onto Laney's lap. What followed was described by witnesses as a "cat-fight".

According to junior Denise Pennington, longtime friend of both Wilk and Laney, there was more to the fight than meets the eye. "The toy they were fighting about was Blubby, a stuffed Walrus," Pennington explained, "Alice's boyfriend Craig Mueueler won it for her at some carnival. Janet has always been jealous of [Craig]. She thinks Janet spends more time with him than her. That would probably explain why she stole Blubby and then burned him at the stake. That friendship is o-ver."

Alice Wilk[left] and Janet Laney[right] during happier times. Boyfriend Craig Mueueler is in the middle.